

Qualities & Consciousness

A workshop with Dr. Sam Coleman (University of Hertfordshire)

November 29, 2019

Venue: Institute of Philosophy, CAS, Jilská 1, Praha 1, meeting room

Programme:

10:00 – 11:20 Sam Coleman (University of Hertfordshire), “What-it-is-likeness and the Stream of Unconsciousness”

11:20 – 11:30 coffee break

11:30 – 12:10 Tomáš Marvan (Institute of Philosophy, CAS) – Michal Polák (University of West Bohemia), “How to Mitigate the Hard Problem by Adopting the Dual Theory of Phenomenal Consciousness”

12:10 – 13:40 lunch

13:40 – 14:20 Juraj Hvorecký (Institute of Philosophy, CAS), “Forms of Unconscious Content”

14:20 – 15:00 Tomáš Hříbek (Institute of Philosophy, CAS), “Is There a New Science of Consciousness?”

15:00 – 15:10 coffee break

15:10 – 15:50 Jakub Mihálik (Institute of Philosophy, CAS/University of Hertfordshire), “Panqualityism, Awareness and the Explanatory Gap”

15:50 – 16:30 James Hill (Institute of Philosophy, CAS/Charles University), “Awareness and Self-Awareness in Panqualityism”

Organisers: Department of Analytic Philosophy and Department for the Study of Modern Rationality of the Institute of Philosophy of the Czech Academy of Sciences with support of the Strategy AV21

EUROPEAN UNION
European Structural and Investment Funds
Operational Programme Research,
Development and Education

