

&

Oddělení analytické filosofie Filosofického ústavu AV ČR

uvádějí/present

Vít Gvoždiak

ALL THAT IS SAID

The work of H. P. Grice can be considered a key contribution to the theory of utterance meaning and the pragmatics of communication. The paper will deal mainly with the understanding of "what is said" as a component of non-natural meaning and closely related to the conventional meaning of the words (sentence), but not identical with it. The presentation will address (i) basic (post-gricean) positions on the concept of "what is said" and (ii) confront them with a specific problem in the field of non-ideal philosophy of language (Stanley - Beaver 2019), the dogwhistle phenomenon (Saul 2018).

Thursday, November 26, 2020, 15:00

Online – Zoom link:

<https://cesnet.zoom.us/j/99538674347?pwd=WjZGT0lvQ01ZeVdtTHhlMDZoL2dHZz09>